2020 Presidents Institute Guide to Sponsors

Services and areas of expertise offered by sponsors of this Institute
The Council of Independent Colleges is grateful for the support provided by the sponsors of the 2020 Presidents Institute. The sponsoring firms for this year’s event provide industry-leading expertise in all aspects of institutional management. CIC knows the value and importance of partnerships between our member institutions and our sponsors. The Guide to Institute Sponsors is designed to inform presidents of the ways these products and services of sponsoring firms can assist the work of independent colleges and universities. CIC also offers this guide as a resource to share with other administrators on your campus.

A complete list of Institute sponsor representatives can be found on the Participants Lists. This information, as well as descriptions and links to sponsor websites, can also be found by downloading Guidebook, the Institute’s free conference app. CIC encourages participants to learn more about the Institute sponsors and to visit their display tables located in the Calusa Foyer. For more information, please contact Alana K. Cassidy, CIC development manager, by phone at (202) 466-7230 or by email at acassidy@ cic.nche.edu.
Gonser Gerber LLP understands that each university or college is unique. The firm takes time to get to know the president and other institutional leaders to understand each institution’s particular opportunities and challenges. Gonser Gerber is based on forming individually crafted relationships. Founded in 1950, Gonser Gerber is the nation’s first advancement consulting firm serving higher education institutions. The firm’s services have provided more than 800 clients with innovative solutions, improved philanthropic performance, and achieved campaign goals.

Johnson, Grossnickle and Associates (JGA) takes an authentic approach to providing strategic and philanthropic consulting services to private colleges and universities, based on the firm’s 25 years of experience in the field. Whatever scenario or challenge an institution is facing, it’s likely that JGA experts have faced it too; they have been senior advancement officers, leaders of institutions, and philanthropic consultants. So, while their breadth and depth of experience allow them to serve as thought leaders, they also are thought lenders, sharing their experience and expertise. Every lesson they have learned along the way is brought to the table.

Farrell Day’s experienced team members analyze and contextualize data, enabling partners to change the trajectory of their institutions.
Hunter Global Education, LLC was established to bridge educational and relational gaps between American and Asian educational institutions and businesses. With today’s globalization, the need for honest, affordable, and reliable educational advice and assistance is growing. Institutions that once served local and regional needs are now being challenged to enter the global market, and trusted relationships are the highway on which international programs run. Students who once attended local and regional colleges and universities are venturing far from home to secure their education. Good decisions in all these areas require a sound knowledge of other cultures and countries. Hunter seeks to fill this knowledge and relationship void with its many programs and services.

Knack’s 21st-century student success platform helps institutions improve retention, graduation, and college-to-career outcomes by increasing access and the impact of peer-to-peer support services. The platform activates high-achieving students as a network of campus peer educators, offering them high-impact experiential employment opportunities that cultivate career skills. In turn, the model simultaneously enables equitable peer-to-peer support services to every student at scale. Program costs stay low because top employer/corporate partners sponsor the program activities as a way to build brand recognition and identify top rising talent for recruiting purposes.

Informed by behavioral data, the firm’s responsive marketing deepens relationships with prospective students and their parents to move them toward right-fit educational experiences—all in the service of helping their partners achieve mission-critical enrollment, diversity, and revenue goals.

Witt-Coyne, LLC is a very different consulting firm. The firm believes colleges that provide distinctive value to students can succeed while others fail. But to succeed requires a college to identify and deliver differentiated value, communicate that in personally compelling ways to prospective students, and work personally with its own students when they face difficulties. Digital methods have a role to play, but they are not the answer. They are just tools. Effective management and processes are the answer. Witt-Coyne, LLC works with presidents, boards, and top administrators in unique ways to help build the relevant management practices, processes, and skills.
