CIC/NEW YORK TIMES PARTNERSHIP IN EDUCATION

The partnership with The New York Times provides CIC member institutions with benefits such as discounted rates and opportunities to bring Times reporters and editors to campus for speaking engagements. The intent is to use The New York Times as a resource to foster students’ intellectual growth and curiosity, civic participation, and personal success.

In addition, student newspaper reporters and editors from campus Partner institutions will be invited to come to New York in the spring for a day-long workshop, “Inside the Times.” The workshop provides an unusual opportunity for student news editors to meet with reporters and editors from the nation’s premier newspaper, explore the role of newspapers in contemporary society, discuss all aspects of publishing, hone their journalistic skills, and meet their peers working on campus newspaper staffs across the country.

Presidents of Partner institutions will be invited to participate in the annual Presidents Advisory Council meeting in October. About 30 presidents have the opportunity to meet and discuss editorial issues with Times reporters and editors.

Other complimentary benefits include campus programs and events sponsored by The Times as well as Faculty Luncheons hosted by Times staff members, during which instructional strategies for integrating Times content in courses are shared and online educational resources are reviewed.

How to Join. Many CIC colleges and universities have joined the CIC/NYT partnership. The only obligation for a college to be considered a partner is a minimum of 100 print or digital copies and in addition, site licenses are available at a deeply discounted rate.

If you are interested in discussing a partnership, please contact Kathleen O’Connell, Times National Education Director, at oconkm@nytimes.com or (203) 727-4495.
